

Nick Gau

Nick is a native Nashvillian who has always had a deep affinity for the Nashville community. Nick was first introduced to trauma and resiliency informed care while working at Monroe Harding, a local non-profit that provided residential care to young men in State's custody. During his time at Monroe Harding Nick graduated from Middle Tennessee State University and met his future wife, Violet. After some time in the private sector Nick made the decision to attend law school, with hopes of returning to the public interest field. After graduating from Belmont College of Law Nick was able to do just that as an Equal Justice Works Disaster Resilience Fellow at the Tennessee Alliance for Legal Services.
